Schools Outreach Officer

Background
Building on decades of experience of working with children the RSPB has just entered its final year of a partnership with Aldi that has enabled us to bring nature into the lives of hundreds and thousands of children. We are now looking for a committed, passionate and innovative person to deliver the final year of the partnership and explore and develop ways to make our offer sustainable in London going forward.

People’s growing disconnection from nature is a significant strategic threat to nature conservation. The RSPB has to take a lead in reversing that trend, and it’s urgent. Only 10% of children regularly explore and play in natural places, compared to 40% in the 1970s. With fewer children developing their connection to nature, this will translate into fewer champions of the natural world in the future. We need to reverse this trend by providing opportunities for children to connect to nature, and providing opportunities to connect to nature and by empowering young people to take action to save nature.

The RSPB has a target to offer two million connection to nature experiences by 2021 – a vital tool to deepen young people’s connection to nature. Aldi has funded this project with over £2million and together we are enabling children to go on their own wild adventures at school and at home. So far in London over 27,000 children have engaged with the RSPB through our outreach sessions. Aldi will continue to fund the Schools Outreach Project in Primary Schools and Early Years settings until July 2019.

We are looking for someone who . . .
- can recruit, train and manage volunteers to deliver schools sessions and build their capabilities to ensure delivery of our ambitious schools outreach programme
- has a collaborative approach and excellent communication skills
- can take the lead on identifying opportunities to increase and grow volunteering in the project for London
- can explore creative regional approaches to project management to test a viable and sustainable model for the future
- can use their experience of delivering environmental education to primary aged and early years children to inspire and develop the volunteer team

Joining the team
The successful candidate will be part of the South East region Education, Families and Youth team, working closely alongside the existing London Schools Outreach Officer, who works part time, as well as with other team members working in our families and youth work.

Our London Bridge office is a regular base for a small number of the South East Regional Team, including the teams that deliver education sessions, activities in green spaces, external communications and membership recruitment. The London Office is also a hot desking hub. Working here you will have the opportunity to meet and work with a cross section of the organisation – including directors, external partners, volunteers and colleagues from other regions and our headquarters who all regularly use the office.

The Schools Outreach Officer role will suit an enthusiastic individual with a passion for nature and young people, a great team player as well as proven experience in volunteer management.

Tips for your application
When you complete the application form, make sure you tell us how you meet the essential and desirable knowledge, skills and experience in the role description as well as considering the information laid out in this document. Using examples from your previous experience will help us understand how your knowledge, skills and experience could make you the right person for the role.
Who we are and what we do

The RSPB exists to give nature a home. We help our birds, other wildlife and natural places survive and thrive.

On our doorstep are woods and farmland, moors and marshes, cliffs and mountains. They are home to an astonishing array of precious but threatened wildlife. Every species is unique, but they are all connected to one another. And every one of them needs a home to survive.

Sadly, many of our best loved and most iconic species can’t find a welcome home here any more. It’s our job to change this. A country that’s not home to skylarks and puffins, red squirrels and hedgehogs is not a country any of us want to live in.

To protect our threatened birds and other wildlife, we need to protect the places where they live. If we are taking care of nature, we are taking care of ourselves and future generations.

The RSPB in a nutshell

The Royal Society for the Protection of Birds (RSPB):

- Was formed in 1889 to counter the barbaric trade in bird plumes for women’s hats
- Has since grown into a world-leading wildlife conservation organization and now speak out for all birds and wildlife, tackling the problems which threaten our environment
- Has over a million members, including more than 200,000 youth members
- Has more than 2,000 active staff members and almost 18,000 volunteers, who donate more than a million hours of their time – that’s the equivalent of 600 full-time staff
- Has a NET income available for charitable purposes of £89.3 million
- Has more than 200 nature reserves covering 143,780 hectares and home to 80% of our rarest or most threatened bird species
- Has a UK headquarters, three national offices and eight regional offices
- Has a network of over 150 local groups and more than 150 youth groups
- Has an impressive global reach, with active projects and capacity building programmes in 26 countries and 10 UK Overseas Territories
- Is the UK partner and leading player, in Birdlife International
- Has the largest charity mail order operation in the UK, and also has the UK’s most successful charity credit card

Volunteers

Volunteers founded the RSPB 125 years ago and remain a vitally important part of the organization today; there are approximately nine volunteers for every paid member of staff. Our volunteers bring a unique range of skills and qualities to the RSPB, help stretch our scarce resources and keep us in touch with grass roots.
Our Strategy, Mission and Cultural Values

Our Strategy

Our vision: a world richer in nature
Imagine this. Wild birds and other wildlife will no longer be declining. Nature is restored, enriching and sustaining the lives of people as a result. Such a world would guarantee that future generations have clean air and water, a stable climate, abundant and diverse wildlife, and a robust, diverse and sustainable economy.

Our long-term purpose: saving nature
We believe that:
- There is a moral imperative to save nature
- Nature is crucial for peoples quality of life and the planet’s life support systems
- Birds are an integral part of the web of life
- We are well placed to stand up for birds and all nature
- The challenge is great, we must work with others to succeed
- We need growing popular support

Our Mission

By 2020…
Our work is both urgent and important and we need to act now to make a difference. The world’s governments have committed to halting biodiversity loss by 2020 and we will challenge them, as well as businesses, civil society and ourselves, to take the steps necessary to reach this goal, and then go further.

Our Cultural Values

Our cultural values are the way we work with each other and partners:

Bold
We speak out honestly for what we believe in, aiming higher and pushing further for growth. We seek to provide innovative, fun and sociable ways for people to get involved

Focused
We identify where birds and wildlife are most under threat, then act decisively and with commitment to save them and deliver tangible results

Supportive
We support each other and our sector partners in order to flourish, and make sure our supporters receive reward and recognition for their contribution

Together
We work together for the biggest possible impact across the RSPB and with partners across the UK and globally

Environmental Statement

We have a role to play in protecting our environment by being as ‘green’ as possible. Through our environmental management system (EMAS), we have an Environmental Policy, objectives and targets which prioritises where we can do most. All staff members are asked to respect and adhere to our green principles.

Equality and Diversity at the RSPB

The RSPB is part of a global network that incorporates a diversity of traditions and cultures, and which represents different inheritances, backgrounds, influences, perspectives and experiences. A better understanding of people’s differences will help us to appreciate and value everyone’s contribution, and recognise that we are all an integral and invaluable part of the RSPB.

Everyone has the right to be treated with consideration and respect. The RSPB is committed to achieving a truly inclusive environment for all, by developing better working relationships that release the full potential, creativity and productivity of each individual, and an atmosphere where everyone can learn, work and live free from prejudice, discrimination, harassment and violence.

The RSPB aims to ensure that all staff, volunteers, partners, clients, contractors, members and the general public are treated fairly. Unless it can be shown to be justified, this will be regardless of sex, sexual orientation, gender re-assignment, marital or civil partnership status, race (including colour, nationality, ethnicity, or national origin), disability, medical status, age, religion or belief, political opinion, social or economic status, or ex-offender status.

Employment Checks

All offers of employment are made subject to the following criteria:

Proof of eligibility to work in the UK, Satisfactory Employment Health Check, Two references satisfactory to the RSPB and where required a Satisfactory Criminal Records Bureau Check.

Applications from candidates requiring a certificate of sponsorship under the UK points-based immigration system will not be considered if there are suitable candidates who do not require sponsorship. This is because employers need to demonstrate that they are unable to recruit a resident worker, before they can recruit a non-resident worker*. The resident worker rule does not prevent applicants requiring sponsorship from applying for our vacancies, but such applications should be made on the understanding that they can only be considered subject to the restrictions above.

For further information, please visit the Home Office UK Border Agency website.

*This rule does not apply to those applying for roles that require a bachelor, postgraduate degree or postgraduate certificate in education qualification. It is necessary for the qualification to be an essential requirement for the role and the applicant to prove that they possess such a qualification (or have completed a minimum of 12 months study in the UK towards a UK PhD), which is recognised in the UK.
